

MAP SHOWING ROUTE OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S CABLEGRAM GIRDLING THE GLOBE

STORM DELAYS THE OPENING OF PACIFIC CABLE

President Roosevelt's Message Girdling the Earth Will Be Started on Its 25,000-Mile Journey at 3 O'Clock This Afternoon.

THE TROUBLE WAS IN THE WATERS OF HAWAII.

Furious Gale Prevented the Cable Ship From Taking Up the Terminus of the Line and Making Connection at Honolulu.

OYSTER BAY, July 4.—President Roosevelt's opening of the cable from San Francisco to Manila has been deferred owing to the intervention of the elements. A furious storm which raged near Honolulu yesterday prevented the cable ship from taking up the terminus of the cable there and making connections with the Manila lines. It was intended to start the President's message on its journey about 9 o'clock this morning. All arrangements for transmitting the message have been completed. The Postal Telegraph Co. has placed a set of instruments in the executive office here, and not having its own wires between here and New York, connected the instruments with a long-distance telephone wire.

President Roosevelt wrote his message to Gov. Taft yesterday and also prepared that which is to be sent around the world.

Just as everything was in readiness this morning, a message was received from New York announcing that the opening of the cable had to be deferred at least temporarily on account of the trouble at Honolulu. It was announced by Secretary Loeb that the officials of the cable company hoped to have the line connected in time to start the message at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

President Roosevelt was disappointed at the delay, as he was particularly anxious that the opening of the direct cable between the United States and its possessions in the Philippines should occur on the Fourth of July, as the completion of the line would mark a distinct effort in the history of this country. Assurance is given that no further delay will occur and that the messages will be sent surely this afternoon.

The message goes from Oyster Bay to New York, New York to Chicago, Chicago to San Francisco over land lines. From San Francisco it will be flashed through 2300 miles of ocean to Honolulu. From the territory of Honolulu it will strike its way under the sea 1284 miles to Midway, where the cable layers should anchor for their electric wire on the largest, a barren strip a mile wide and twice as long. Their work was made merry by the songs of myriads of birds, the only inhabitants of this mound rising out of the desert sea, although there was the deserted and dilapidated hut of the captain of the Wandering Minstrel, his wife and crew, wrecked there in 1887. It was their home for fourteen months before they were discovered and taken off.

From here there is a stretch of cable on the ocean's bottom of 266 miles to Guam. From Guam it is 1700 miles to Manila, where Governor-General Taft, who will have received a "Fourth of July" message from President Roosevelt, informing him of the coming of the dispatch, will attend the reception and relaying of the latter's next stopping place being Hong Kong, that little British garrison and trading post on the tiny island of the same name.

TABLE OF PLACES AND DISTANCES IN THE MESSAGE'S ROUTE OF TRAVEL.

The following table shows the stations on the new Pacific cable as well as the route over which President Roosevelt's message travels, and the time at which it reached the stations, assuming that it left New York at 5 a. m. July 4:

San Time.	Miles.	San Time.	Miles.
New York 5 a.m. July 4.....	000	Madras 3:30 p.m. July 4.....	15,323
Chicago 4 a.m. July 4.....	900	Bombay 3 p.m. July 4.....	16,228
San Francisco 2 a.m. July 4.....	3,250	Aden 1 p.m. July 4.....	18,116
Honolulu 11 p.m. July 3.....	5,326	Rueh 12 noon July 4.....	19,519
Midway 10 p.m. July 3.....	6,911	Alexandria 12 noon July 4.....	19,755
Guam 7 p.m. July 4.....	9,044	Malta 11 a.m. July 4.....	20,671
Manila 6 p.m. July 4.....	11,413	Gibraltar 10 a.m. July 4.....	21,797
Hong Kong 5 p.m. July 4.....	12,042	Lisbon 9:30 a.m. July 4.....	22,159
Singapore 5 p.m. July 4.....	13,026	Amoy 8 a.m. July 4.....	23,242
Penang 5 p.m. July 4.....	14,025	Canton 6 a.m. July 4.....	24,940
		New York 5 a.m. July 4.....	25,935

The international date line crosses the Midway Islands, making it the dividing point of time and longitude.

When it is 10 a. m. in Oyster Bay it is 10 p. m. in Honolulu, and is the day before or the day after at Midway, according to which side of the line you are.

This arbitrary state of affairs makes Roosevelt's message do some queer tricks with time. It arrives at some places before it is sent, all because of the international date line.

THE NEW CABLE FROM SAN FRANCISCO TO MANILA.

The American part of the new telegraph line across the Pacific ocean for the purpose of determining a suitable route for the Hawaiian Islands, thence to the Midway Island, island of Guam and the Philippines. After Congress had decided against a government cable, and an amicable understanding had been arrived at between the cable company and the government, these soundings were turned over to the company for their study.

When it is remembered that the average depth of the route selected was about three miles, the magnitude of the task marked out by these soundings becomes sufficiently impressive.

On the first, between San Francisco and Hawaii, the mean depth is 2500 fathoms, with a maximum of 3073; on the second, between Hawaii and Midway Island, the mean depth is 2000, the maximum 2026; on the third, from Midway Island to Guam, the mean depth is 2600, with a maximum of 4900, and with sudden and great fluctuations; on the fourth, from Guam to Luzon, the average depth is 2200, the maximum 3400 fathoms.

To bring home the significance of these immense depths in cable laying, it may be explained that the amount of cable in suspension necessarily varies according to the depths and the weight of the cable. In 2900 fathoms, with the ship steaming at eight knots per hour, no less than 25 miles of cable are suspended in the water. Two and a half hours are occupied in such case by any particular point in the cable from the time of leaving the ship to touching the bottom.

Then, when the cable is being paid out, which may last, with a long section, some ten or fourteen days, a storm may arise or some mishap may occur on board, resulting in the loss of the cable in a depth of three miles below the surface. In such a case the date of its recovery cannot possibly be predicted; the interruption may last for three or four days, or it may be for as many weeks.

The cable steamer Silvertown with the first section of the Pacific cable on board, consisting of 312 nautical miles and weighing 467 tons, left the English coast on Sept. 22, 1902, arriving at San Francisco on Dec. 4. The shore end of the cable having been laid with appropriate ceremonies the Silvertown left for Honolulu on Dec. 15, arriving off the islands on Christmas Day, and on the morning of Dec. 28 the cable was buoyed during a heavy rain at a point about 25 miles from Honolulu. During the trip from San Francisco to Honolulu about 200 miles of cable were laid.

The cable company had undertaken to complete the line to Manila by 1904, but the work of manufacture had been so dilapidated and the business of laying the cable was so thoroughly systematized that the representative of the company was able to announce at the time the shore end was laid in San Francisco that complete communication would be established with the Philippines by the Fourth of July, 1903.

The cable runs from 3 inches in diameter at the terminals to 1 inch in thickness for the deep sea. It has a single copper wire on the outside, surrounded by an inner copper wire for protection and incased in water-tight covering. It will lie on the bottom of the Pacific at an average depth of 2000 feet, but off Guam a hole was found in the ocean's bottom which let the sounder down more than six miles.

THE JEWS AS CITIZENS.

Rabbi Hirschberg's Address at the Detroit Convention.

DETROIT, July 4.—With the observance of regular Sabbath morning services, the 14th annual meeting of the central conference of American rabbis came to an end today. The conference sermon was preached by Rabbi Samuel Hirschberg of Boston on the appropriate subject for the Fourth of July—Judaism, Americanism, Cosmopolitanism. Rabbi Hirschberg said:

"Jews as a common identity and in equal degree with all his fellow residents of this or any other land, his religion has taught to do with his citizenship, untroubled by the fact that citizenship is better, the Jew is a citizen of the world, in the largest universal sense, truly, rightly, justly, and completely. It is only the unconceivable and unchangeable anti-Semitism that cannot and will not see it. There is no people today so readily assimilative of the natural characteristics so truly cosmopolitan as the Jew."

Moolah Temple Arab Patrol to Seek to Retain Drilling Honors at Saratoga Contest.

St. Louis Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will leave Sunday noon on a special train for Saratoga, N. Y., to attend the meeting of the Imperial Council there and secure its session for St. Louis in 1904, if possible.

John Linahan to Be Buried Sunday.

Well-Known Bookseller Died Thursday Morning After an Illness of Few Days.

John Linahan, the well-known book dealer, will be buried Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the funeral being held from the residence, 228 Morgan street, to St. Bridget's Church. Father Carney, an intimate friend of Mr. Linahan, will conduct the funeral services and the interment will be in Calvary cemetery. Eight of the Catholic Knights of America, Branch 92, will act as pall bearers for their fellow member.

Mr. Linahan died Thursday night after a brief illness. He was 55 years old and the general debility, which caused his death, terminated a remarkable career, much of the success of which was due to his native cleverness, wit and industry.

John Linahan had been in the book-selling business in St. Louis since the civil war, and in recent years owned the well-known second-hand book store on Market street opposite the Grand Opera House.

He was widely known among Irish-Americans in St. Louis. He was a native of Ireland, born in Bellinamona, County Cork. His father originally ran the Bellinamona Fair, an event of national importance to the Irish people.

The fair and the girls who always attended it, became celebrated in Irish song and story.

John, who was one of a numerous family, grew restless when about 20 years old, and asked his father for money and permission to come to America and make his own way. He obtained both.

So he crossed the Atlantic and landed in Philadelphia, where he worked in a dry goods store, and at odd jobs for a time, and drifted to New Orleans during the war.

When he reached St. Louis he peddled books on the levee, and carried a route on the old St. Louis Times.

He asked a friend to join him in the newspaper carrier work, but the friend said there was no money in it.

"Yes there is," said John. "If you work hard at it. This was the spirit that distinguished him through life. According to his brother, Dan, everything John touched he made to make money."

In 1864 he saw a lot of books for sale in an auction store at Fifth and Pine streets. He bought the books and started a stand in front of the store. This was the beginning of his real success. Afterwards he moved to Olive street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, then to Sixth street, between Pine and Chestnut streets. For a time his shop was under the Grand Opera House, but for the last five years his store has been across the street.

Law and medical books were a specialty with John Linahan, and many prominent men in those professions frequented his shop, of which John was one of the chief attractions.

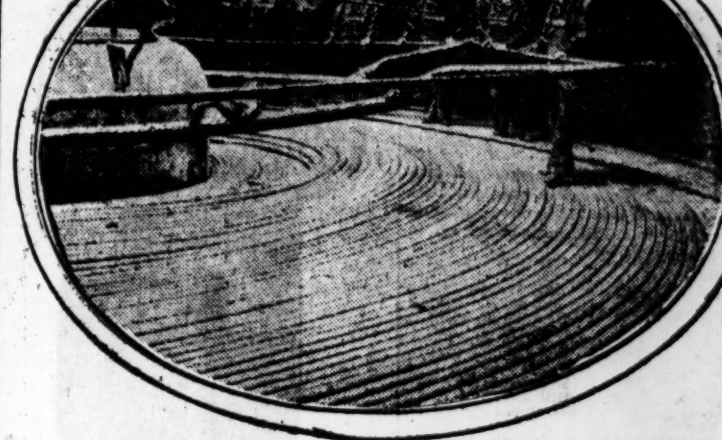

John was generous, a fine talker, and knew all about the books he sold. He had many peculiar ideas, but none that his friends blamed him for. He delighted to best a friend in an argument, and was always ready to commence one.

In his will he remembered his relatives. He left $100 to Mrs. Kate McIsaac, his sister, of Marine County, California, and $200 to his daughter, Evelyn. To another niece, Miss Mary Hegel of San Francisco, he left $200, and the remainder of his property, consisting of two houses on Morgan street, and his book business to his brother, Dan. He was married twice, his last wife died four years ago.

SODA WATER FAMINE IN ALTON

Failure of Supply of Liquid Gas to Reach Illinois City Causes Boost for Beer and Ginger Ale.

The lovers of soda water were in a bad way in Alton Friday. There was no soda water. The recalcitrant husband had an excuse for going back to beer, and the soda and phosphate stomach went dry.

The shipment of liquid gas, which comes from St. Louis each day to the Alton soda fountains, missed connections Thursday night and there was not a glass of soda served in Alton Friday.

The day was one of the hottest of the summer, and the proprietor of the soda fountain disliked to turn away the nickels and dimes. They offered the customers lemonade, ice cream, ginger ale and other drinks but phosphates was what customers were after.

The situation was relieved Saturday morning by plenty of the gas, and once more the summer girl is getting summer drinks and the occasional beer drinkers are without an excuse to turn away from soft drinks. It was the first soda water famine in Alton ever since the customers gave any suspicion of theft. Special Officers Keaney and Clark undertook to find them as though left while Mrs. Norton was doing household duties.

Diamonds in Garbage Barrel. Diamonds and jewelry to the value of $200 were found in a garbage barrel in the rear of the home of Mrs. J. W. Sorgen at 544 Cleveland avenue. Mrs. Sorgen had reported the loss of the jewels to the seventh district police and as she could not give any suspicion of theft, Special Officers Keaney and Clark undertook to find them as though left while Mrs. Norton was doing household duties.

OUR NOISY PATRIOTISM.

This is the day we celebrate. In other words, this is the day we blow ourselves up with gunpowder, tear our fingers off with rusty revolvers, pierce our neighbors' thighs with leaden balls and jar the sensibilities of the entire community with loaded canes, cannon crackers and reverberating anvils. Just why we do this it were difficult to say, unless it is that American patriotism is naturally noisy and is never satisfied unless it can have a noisy outlet. By that same token, American patriotism must be growing stronger every year, for each succeeding Fourth of July finds the noise of its predecessor all but doubled.

Also American patriotism is becoming more demonstrative in general, for now, instead of our independence celebration being confined to one day, as formerly, it commences two weeks before the Fourth of July and continues during the week following it.

After a while, if the ardor of our patriotism shall continue to increase, it may be necessary for Congress to set aside the entire month of July for patriotic purposes, instead of only one day, making the whole month a time of one grand, sweet cannonading.

What is the use of having a great, glorious and free country unless we can make a big fuss about it?

The number of heat prostrations in cities which have talked freely of St. Louis summer warmth should be noted by people who expect to be here next year.

GENTLEMENLY PRIZEFIGHTERS.

In Boston even the prizefighters are gentlemanly, courteous and considerate of one another's feelings. They seem determined to uphold the reputation of The Hub as the most cultured city in America.

When Mr. William Rothwell of Denver, known in his professional capacity as Young Corbett, went to Boston to engage in fist warfare for a consideration, he found his opponent, Mr. Jimmy Briggs, to be such a perfect gentleman that when they met in the roped arena in the presence of 3000 cultured sports from the Bean City he could hardly nerve himself up to the task of attempting, in the rude language of the West, to knock his block off.

We are informed by a gentlemanly sporting writer of Boston that "the majority of those who witnessed the bout were supporters of Mr. Briggs and manifested their disapproval of Referee Daly's decision in Young Corbett's favor in no uncertain manner. The decision was a just one, however, as the champion outpointed the local boy handsly and toward the end of the bout did his best to win decisively."

You see, there is no mention whatsoever of hisses, catcalls, cries of "Lynch the referee!" rough house tactics, blood or any other unsightly feature. The whole affair was conducted in an orderly and decent manner, and we dare say that if Mr. Rothwell spilled any of Mr. Briggs' claret or punched him too rudely at any particular time he made haste to apologize for his ungenteel conduct.

How can we possibly object to prizefights in which the principals display such a charming regard for one another's feelings?

The record-breaking importation of diamonds is clear evidence of American prosperity. The total importations for the fiscal year amount to more than $27,000,000. If we could add to this the figures for diamonds that have been smuggled we should have a wonderful showing.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND LABOR

The new department of Commerce and Labor which became an active organ in the government on July 1 is composed of 13 bureaus, two being new creations and 11 transferred from other departments.

The bureaus transferred from the Treasury are: Lighthouse board and establishment, steamboat inspection service, bureau of navigation and shipping commission, bureau of standard coast and geodetic survey, bureau of immigration and bureau of statistics (treasury). From the interior department comes the census bureau and from the state department the bureau of statistics and commerce. The two independent departments, Labor and the Fish Commission, whose heads have hitherto reported directly to the President and Congress are attached to the new department as bureaus.

The two new creations are a bureau of manufactures, which seems to be charged only with the duty of circulating consular reports; and a bureau of corporations. The business of this latter is to "make diligent investigation into the organization, conduct and management of the business of any corporation, joint stock company or corporate combination engaged in commerce among the several states," etc., except, and to collect such information as will help the President to make recommendations to Congress.

It will be observed that the business of this new bureau is merely to ask questions and transmit the answers to the President. The commissioner at the head of the bureau has just as much authority over other corporations as the interstate commerce commission has over the railroads in respect to summoning witnesses and exacting evidence.

"LEST WE FORGET"

Gentlemen: Presenting information relative to the disadvantages and exorbitant terminal charges to which our city's commerce is subjected, both as regards the bridge arbitrary and the Terminal road, would remark that inasmuch as the bridge arbitrary is absorbed on eastern and western traffic passing through our city, feel that THE INTERESTS OF EAST ST. LOUIS AND ST. LOUIS PROPER ARE CONSTANTLY BEING DISCRIMINATED AGAINST, AND, THEN, ADDED TO THIS BURDEN, TERMINAL CHARGES, SUCH AS SWITCHING, WHICH IS OUT OF ALL PROPORTION TO LONG DISTANCE RATES, PLACES AN EMBARGO ON OUR COMMERCE WHICH IS NEITHER CONSISTENT WITH JUSTICE NOR IN ACCORD WITH THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE LAW. For the present we will only submit for your consideration specific items of charges in switching grain from an East Side elevator to a connecting railway line east, bills for which we herewith submit in evidence. Yours very truly,

St. Louis Merchants' Exchange. THOMAS BOOTH, President.

A SEASONABLE MEDITATION.

While boys of all ages are making a noise and burning red fire, mature people should celebrate the Fourth of July by a little quiet thought on the meaning of the day.

The Declaration of Independence is the source of American political doctrine; Americanism has consisted, until recently at least, in progressively translating doctrine into life.

That all men were created equal is the basic fact upon which the structure of American liberty is reared and from which as from a foundation of eternal life all the blessings, peculiarly American, spring. Equality before the law and equal participation in the rights and privileges of citizenship—these are the objects which all Americans strive to realize in fact, and of considerable measure of success—until the fateful year of 1898.

Flowing directly from this doctrine of equality, involved in it as a necessary consequence, is the doctrine that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. Nobody ventured to raise his voice against these two articles of faith or prepare a policy contrary to them until the Spanish war opened an opportunity for conquest and seduced many from the faith and creed of '76. Then the policy known as the policy of philanthropy and five per cent, which, being interpreted, is hypocrisy and greed, was substituted for that of Jefferson, Adams and Franklin.

Let us meditate upon this sudden and unexpected departure from our former faith. Is it only a temporary aberration, or an established fact not to be shaken? Already it is announced by those who claim authority that we shall never return to the old channels. They tell us that the people of Porto Rico need not expect citizenship, the Philippines must not hope to become Americans. The American republic composed of citizens, all free, is to pass into history and in its place the American empire—half slave and half free. That is the meaning of recent events. They admit of no other interpretation. Are we satisfied with this revolution? Are we willing to live in house divided against itself?

The Fourth of July is a fitting day to ask and answer these questions.

One New England railroad has found its coal bill increased $2,000,000 in the year ending June 30. It may be inferred from this how greatly the cost of railroading throughout the country must have been increased by the higher coal prices.

The big tallyho automobiles of the World's Fair, each carrying 40 persons, will do much to solve the transportation problem. It is quite likely that everybody will "get there," in one way or another.

The world is astonished at the poor showing of the American automobilists in the race in Ireland. We must learn to carry the flag to victory on an automobile as much as if it were a battleship.

Law is sacred until it gets in the way of a powerful combination of greed. Then look out for anarchy—the quiet sort that is most effective.

WHY DID SHE DO IT?

She was a truly charming and attractive damsel. With eyes as clear and limpid as the waters in a well. And when she ambled up the walk, since every inch was dry. I wondered why (and rubbed long) she held her skirt so high.

Now, even when she paused to wait the advent of the car, Her skirt she never lowered, though there was no mud to mar; And of the fact I made a note, while wisdom went berserk. That both her slender ankles were encained in open-work.

Black was the pattern—black as jet—and underneath was white. "No sun upon an Easter day is half so fine a sight."

And who would scorn a chance to take a mental photograph. Of such a subtle, sweet display of gently sloping calf?

I rubbed—I admit the fact—and others, too, were there. Who gazed upon that lovely sight, and all pronounced it fair; And all the while that damsel (Unconscious!) Oh, hell! Kept holding up her pretty skirt, although the walk was dry.

Poor Humanity.

The majority of men have no money except on payday.

They don't know how to handle it. That's the reason. They see money so seldom that the sight of it makes them nervous and skittish; and consequently they get so faulty a grip upon it that it gets away from them almost before they are aware.

You enter a barber shop during the first week in any month. You have to wait 30 minutes or more for a chair, because everybody is getting a shave, a hair cut, a shampoo or a seafoam, or possibly a massage with one of those new electric machines.

"I've struck a busy time," you remark to the barber when you finally get a chance to rest your weary bones in his chair.

"Yes," he says. "This is the first of the month."

"Why, what difference does that make?" you wonderingly inquire.

"All the difference in the world," he replies. "Everybody has money then."

"Ah!" you say. "Pay day?"

"Exactly," he says. "The majority of men get paid by the month, and the only chance they have to feel wealthy is 12 times a year; and some of them are not so very 'chummy' at times."

That puts things in a new light to you, and you instinctively say to yourself that what this country needs is some sort of a paternal arrangement whereby every citizen can be made familiar with the appearance and worth of money. Without this, however our glorious country may flourish, and however the corporations may swell to the bursting point with opulence, there is a plane and any one who is contagious individual prosperity.

Money is the one thing on this earth with which familiarity does not breed contempt.

A New York millionaire called a woman "My dear," and now she is suing him for $125,000 because he did not continue the conversation. This simply goes to show.

AMERICAN WOMEN IN ITALY.

In an article on this year's society doings in Rome the Italian poet and writer, Domenico Oliva, pays a graceful tribute to American women. After reviewing the various qualities which society women of our nationality contribute to Rome's cosmopolitan assemblies, he exclaims:

"But the fair Americans, with their sparkling eyes, their hair of liquid gold, their stately gracefulness, are the symbol of modernity and vigorous youth, of a power that charms irresistibly and conquers every heart."

"The United States inundate us with their beautiful and all-conquering feminine battalions, but our ancient Latin land captures them in its turn even as classic Greece subdued the victorious Romans."

The author of the article, which appears in the Giornale d'Italia, concludes by saying that American ladies are becoming every year greater favorites not only in the highest Roman society circles but at court itself, where a larger number are being introduced to Queen Helena than has ever before been the case.

MISSOURI ODD FACTS.

There are some disadvantages about being a millionaire farmer. David Rankin, whose "place" near Tarkenton embraces 25,000 acres, has had to replant 10,000 ears of corn that was washed out by the high water.

A Missouri paper thinks it has hit upon the true explanation why negroes seldom commit suicide. It says that when a negro sits down to brood over his troubles, he straightaway goes to sleep and forgets them.

The dogs of David Williams of Joplin made a catch the other day which reminds old settlers of the time when they had to guard their homes pretty closely to keep wild animals off. It was a big gray wolf. A good many coyotes are still caught in Missouri, but real wolves have grown scarce. Williams' dogs started this one in Newton County and chased it into Jasper County. Their owner took its scalp to Carthage to get a bounty, but the bounty had been repealed.

HOW TO WALK.

The tracks to the left show the wrong way to walk and those to the right the right way. You should step as straight as possible and not turn out your toes any more than you'd turn them in.

BIRD, BEAST OR FISH.

Have the players sit in a circle with some one in the center. The one in the center points at some one and says "bird." The one he points at must quickly give the name of a bird, for instance, canary. If a fish is called for the player must name a fish; if a beast, name a beast. The one in the center must wait one instant for a player to answer. If he is quick and skips all around the circle, calling things very quickly, it is great fun, for the players get confused and often give the name of a fish for a bird or vice versa.

Any one who does not answer must give a forfeit. A good way is to make him cry, walk or imitate some animal. Make those who do not answer do something, too.

SURPRISE PARTY HINTS.

Persons planning surprise parties usually meet at a house or some place convenient for all, and proceed to the house together. Each contributes something toward refreshments. Games are played, and if there is a piano and any one will bring a party usually winds up with singing; this is also a good way to break the ice.

THE OLD JOKES HOME

By O. B. Joyful.

Today the inmates of the Old Jokes Home are busy celebrating the centennial of Independence—Independence of the cruel and merciless jokemasters by whom they were held in thrall for years before the establishment of the Old Jokes Home, which proclaimed liberty throughout the land and peace to all the old jokes thereof.

On account of the intense heat of the day the exercises were held in the forenoon.

General Manager Frank R. Tate was on hand, and called the assemblage to order.

Mayor Wells was introduced to the 1903 old jokes which still remain in the institution, and for twenty minutes he addressed them in a happy vein, congratulating them upon their escape from bondage and incidentally praising the work of Mr. Tate, Prof. Rosa Corker, O. B. Joyful and others, whose tireless and devoted efforts have made the Old Jokes Home the noble institution that it is.

After Mayor Wells' speech, which was received with the greatest enthusiasm, a salute of 21 guns was fired as a compliment to him, and immediately after the reverberations and vibrations of the cannon had died away 8000 worth of giant crackers and gunpowder was exploded in honor of the mayor of St. Louis, the Fourth of July and the declaration of Independence of the old jokes.

Following the mayor's speech there was a thrilling oration by Prof. Rosa Corker, the friend of humor and humanity, in

WHAT SHE ESCAPED

Delay Would Probably Have Been Fatal in Miss Goodwin's Case.

"My mother died of consumption five years ago," said Miss Johanna Goodwin, of Northbridge, Mass., "and I thought I was going into the same disease. I believe I would have done so but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

"My complexion had turned pale and yellow and I was ghastly looking. I was so weak I could not dress myself without sitting down to rest a few times and often when I walked a short distance, or even stooped over, pains shot through my back. I was short of breath and often dizzy, my food did not digest properly and my heart was very irregular. There was a noise in my head that nearly drove me crazy. I would hold my hands tight over my ears but still it would not stop, and sometimes I could hardly see. I grew thinner and weaker and was afraid and nearly certain I was going to die."

"One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did so, he helped me before one box was used and in less than two months I was well and strong again, entirely cured."

"The disease from which Miss Goodwin suffered was anemia or 'bloodlessness' and is caused by an actual deficiency of the blood and a watery and degraded state of that fluid. It is characterized by a pallid complexion, pale lips, dull eyes, tongue and gums bloodless, shortness of breath on slight exertion—especially upon going upstairs, palpitation of the heart, feeling of impending death, weakness, loss of appetite and ambition. If left to itself it is apt to result in decline and death."

"The one remedy that has proved itself a specific for anemia is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills have a double action, on the blood and on the nerves. This is the secret of Dr. Williams' discovery and is the cause of the wonderful cures effected by them in stubborn cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold at all druggists, or will be sent direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., postpaid, on receipt of price, fifty cents per box; six boxes for two dollars and a half."

"THE LIONS OF THE LORD."

Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders," befits his youthful appearance and apparent lack of experience. In "The Lions of the Lord" he has written a masterpiece of thrilling and well-balanced fiction. The story deals with the Mormon exodus and growth in the romantic forties. Its principal character is a Mormon elder, the tragedy of whose life forms the warp on which the rest of the story is woven. Unlike most romances of Mormon days, this author has shown insight in that he has given us both sides of the shield. While depicting in their true colors the evils of a priestly tyranny and of the polygamous relation in its bondage to which it is not adapted, Mr. Wilson also tells of the wrongs inflicted upon this religious sect in the opening of its career. Joel Rae, the eloquent if narrow enthusiast, loses his sister and both parents at the hands of the persecuting mob, and the lives of others are embittered from the same cause. The feeling thus engendered has its outcome in the formation of the order of Danites and subsequent incidents as the Mountain Meadows massacre, which is well described in this story. The author shows his breadth by injecting sufficient humor and love-making into the romance to relieve it of its prevailing gloom. Taking the material at hand and without exaggerating, he has given us an historical picture that will live, because it deals in splendid style with an era in American progress that was glowing with color and tense with feeling. MARCONI'S ACTUAL WORK.

Marconi is one of the favored men in whose fame is lost and covered up the fame of other men without whose work his own success would have been impossible. Despite his ability and power, the fact remains that he is not the creator of wireless telegraphy. Carl Snyder, in one chapter of his "New Communications in Science," just published by the Harpers, gives credit to those other brilliant men who should share the honors, but have no popular fame to prove. to measure them, when Marconi was 12; and to Prof. Right of Genoa, Prof. Edouard Branly of Paris, to Sir Oliver Lodge of Birmingham, to Jagadis Chunder Bose of Calcutta, to Popoff of Russia and to several others who have made Marconi's wonderful work possible. And there are American systems now in practical use at short distances—the De Forest and the Fessenden systems. But Marconi "was probably the first to signal at a distance of more than a mile," writes Mr. Snyder, who then gives an accurate account of the young man's actual achievement.

RIIS ON THE HOME.

Jacob A. Riis speaks his mind in customary fashion in the four lectures entitled "The Peril and the Preservation of the Home." He tells the story of the slum and his work. Comment is superfluous. The book speaks for itself, for every sentence contains a sentiment or an idea, and few there are which cannot be quoted and made to stand by itself as a living force.

Here are some of them:

"I used to say that a man cannot be expected to live like a pig and vote like a man, and I had reference to the tenements, some of which surely deserve to be called by no other name. I was very sure of my ground until the industrial troubles of the last summer seemed to cut it partly from under me; further I had people who were well to do, and who ought to know better, right in my own town, come and upbraid me for always fighting the battle with the slum. 'What is the use,' they said, 'they won't be content.' Since that time I have thought that perhaps there may be pigs in parliaments, too."

"Home loving peoples have been the strong peoples in all time."

"Riis perished when most of her people became people, and the family to 'Riis against childhood are sins against the home, are cheating the world of its tomorrow."

"Flats are but showy tenements. There is not one of them with a chimney, but enough to let in Santa Claus, and you might as well give up at once as to have him excluded."

"I do not think there is a tramp problem which hard labor better strokes better cannot solve. It is just a question of human laziness. Save the young, and look up the old man who will not work."

"How strong do you think the home feeling can be in a place where the family kettle does weekly duty on Monday as a wash boiler?"

"Pietro, do you ever laugh?" (to a little Italian)

"I did not."

"I have seen in my day the grass held to be tremendously sacred, while nobody cared about the boy."

"BUB AND SIS."

An exceedingly pretty love tale is revealed in the rhythmic romance of "Bub and Sis," by Simon Durst, which is just now appearing in the book stores. It is a redolent of wholesome New England life, and every line of it, almost, is as bright and fresh as these, with which the story begins:

"It was early summer, with its myriad charm, up in the hills at Apple Meadow farm—the most beautiful of the United States—where the Durst family had their home. It was a place of budding things: of flower, shrub and vine. And sweet-wood trees, birch, maple, beech and pine. And the Durst family, which was a family of brother and sister. The scene of their adventures, as well becomes so sprightly a romance, is laid in the country, where summer boards abound, and it is with them that the story deals. The book is well spiced with Yankee humor of the quaintest sort, and his present effort—it is his third—seems to justify the character of the Durst family, 'a newly discovered original poet and philosopher.'"

"Bub and Sis" is published in attractive form by the Woonsocket Publishing Co. of Woonsocket, R. I.; 146 pages, 32 net.

The July Delmarer shows a considerable change in make-up from preceding issues; the literary matter has been brought to the front of the book, then follow the fashions and lastly departmental matter. The number is in many respects superior to any previous one. The display of the fashions is charming and up to date, and the literary contents are of striking interest. Christine Terhune Herrick writes entertainingly of Marion Harland's souvenir garden at Sun-aybank, her country place in New Jersey, and N. Hudson Moore contributes to the number a finely illustrated paper on roses, "Birds and Their Cradles," by Landon Knight, is a very attractive article, illustrated with photographs. In the seventh "Mildred" paper Miss Clara E. Laughlin writes of the duties toward her neighbors. In fiction there is a short story, "Paper Dolls and Paper Dollars," written by George Hethorn and illustrated by A. L. Keller, and the third installment of "The Bois-Rouges," Mrs. Catherwood's serial. A page of "live photographs of Allen Allen is a historic and modern homes, Van Cortlandt Manor House is described and illustrated, with views of both interior and exterior. For the children, Lina Beard begins a series describing the construction in miniature of the "Seven Wonders of the World." The number also includes the introduction to a series of tales for children called "Fire-light Stories," by Livingston B. Morse. The sixth lesson in "Plain Sewing" is given, and the departments are as helpful and varied in interest as usual.

"Jacky" is the name of one of those Indians who are best when they are dead. He appears as the hero of the story by that name, written by Agnes Provost for the July Lippincott's; a striking bit of adventure ending in the triumph of gratitude over natural cunningness.

The bitter wall that there is no longer a place for old men may be rebuked, by pointing to some of the men in their seventies, eighties and nineties who today are among the commanding forces of the world. Nine splendid full-page portraits, in tint of some of the world's "grand old men" are grouped together in the Book-lovers' Magazine for June—the Pope, Lord Salisbury, Herbert Spencer, Lord Kelvin, the Emperor of Austria, Senator Hoar, Dr. Hiale, Henrik Ibsen and Goldwin Smith—and accompanying these notable portraits are brief but graceful appreciations of each man by such writers as Henry Cabot Lodge, Hamilton W. Mabie and the Rev. Dr. B. D. McConnell.

How a British subaltern, led by a passion for Oriental literature, gained entrance to the secret treasury of a Himalayan monastery, how for his boldness he was chained in the cell where the sacred book was concealed, how for 23 years he heard daily the words he had risked so much to gain, how for 23 years he saw rudely marked bits of wood down the Juma's waters, till an old servant's wit and love interpreted the sign and sent a company of English soldiers to the rescue, how rescue was effected in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles and perils, and how the British Museum gained a valuable literary treasure—all this is told in Homer B. Hubert's "The Sign of the Juma," which will lead the fiction in the July Century.

The most recent production of the pen of Maurice Hewitt, author of "The Forest of Love" and "Richard, Yes and Nay," is the "Queen's Quair," and has for its central figure and its action Mary Queen of Scots.

Scots, and the culminating tragedy of her life. Mr. Hewlett in this work, it is said by those who have had an opportunity to inspect the advance sheets of his novel, is in his happiest and most inspiring vein, and has in no wise departed from the high literary standard of his previous achievements. The American serial rights for the "Queen's Quair" have been secured for the New Metropolitan Magazine, which will be the publication of the work in its July issue.

Mr. Owen Winter, the author of "The Virginian" and "Philosophy Four," is still at work upon his long essay, or series of chapters, upon the sheep and goat family, which will form part of the next volume of the American Sportsman's Library. Another third of this volume, "The Bison, Musk-Ox, Sheep and Goat Family," will be written by Mr. George Bird Brinnell, who knows the mad but picturesque story of the bison peculiarly well, while Mr. Caspar Whitney, the editor of the Library, is practically the only white man who knows the musk-ox well enough to write about it. The Macmillan company will publish the book in the fall. "Philosophy Four," by the way, is reported by New York booksellers among the volumes most in demand at the present time.

BOY AND WAGON FELL IN CREEK

Arthur Brinkmeyer, 11 Years Old,
Pinned Down by Wreckage,
Badly Hurt.

WAITED HALF HOUR FOR HELP.

Slipped and Wagon Ran Off Bridge—
While Companion Went for Help
Held Head Above Water.

Pinned down by a wrecked wagon in a creek, Arthur Brinkmeyer, 11 years old, son of Rev. F. Brinkmeyer, pastor of the German Methodist Church of Edwardsville, kept his head above water for half an hour and saved himself from drowning. The boy was at the country home of Edward Dudo, watching the harvesting. He rode on the water wagon with the driver to the creek for a load to fill the engine tank. They stopped on the bridge and the wagon ran backward. It plunged over the bridge and fell to the bed of the creek below. Arthur was thrown out and pinned down by the wagon. He could just keep his face above the surface of the water. The driver tried to push the wagon away, but failed. The horses were entangled in their harness in the water and the man was compelled to run to the nearest farmhouse for help. It was half an hour before the farmers got the wagon out and lifted him out. He was unconscious for a short time. A physician who examined him found that his thigh bones had shattered and crushed from the weight of the wagon. He is also suffering greatly from the nervous shock.

SALOON LICENSES REFUSED.

Excise Commissioner Seibert Refuses License on Winery Complaints.

Excise Commissioner Seibert has let the ax fall upon several saloon keepers who have applied for renewal of licenses. Sawyer, 9 North Sixth street; Vincent Repetto, 140 Euclid avenue; Wells & Vogel, the Tannery, on North Sixth street; W. H. Williams, the Imperial, 2901 Chestnut street; Arthur Metcalf, 200 Pine street; and Gus Zeidler, 217 North Compton avenue. If Scher of the Home Station, Sixth and Market streets, and "Decks" at Sixth and Pine streets, secured licenses on the promise that no women would be allowed about the places.

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of MOTHER'S FRIEND during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does MOTHER'S FRIEND carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period.

SUMMER READING MATTER

FOR A SULTRY JULY SUNDAY.

After the Fourth the fifth. After the noise the quiet— Silence follows and fills the hollows And hills that rang with riot. After the Fourth the fifth— Rackets enough for one day People have had, and now we'll be glad For a chance to read on Sunday.

Just as "Lord Barrington" is put in jail on a murder charge, a New York girl starts home from Europe, having left her bogus baron husband in jail for numerous crimes. The case closely parallels the celebrated Barrington-Cochrane episode. The Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of tomorrow tells the story.

Did you ever mail some verses to an eastern magazine and await with fear and trembling, their rejection by the mean Man that has to fill the hopper of the poetry machine? Here's a story of a maiden— a Missouri maiden fair—who was brave enough the lion in his manacled den to dare. But she couldn't stand rejection, so she went and cut her hair, dressed herself in male habiliments and, stifling down her sob, in a guileless granger's hayfield went and got herself a job.

The rest of the tale is told in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Longfellow wrote of the ride of Paul Revere. Read wrote of Sheridan's ride. Browning wrote of the ride of Ghent to Aix. Scott wrote of the ride of young Lochinvar. The latest ride to be put into verse is that of Louis Matlock, the Oregon stockman who, a few weeks ago, rode nine miles down Willow creek valley, right in front of the flood that destroyed the town of Heppner, and by his timely warning saved the lives of hundreds of people. Mr. Matlock, in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, writes an account of his thrilling ride, which is "done into verse" by a Post-Dispatch staff writer.

Two souls with but a single thought, Upon single life, Will dwell, with fond affection fraught, And laugh and sing and smile; They will not care to wander back In from languorous lands subdued, To live again where every shack Is subject to a feud.

These two souls belong to a Kentucky young couple, who go for a lifelong honeymoon to the languorous ease of a South Sea island, where the man will build his wife a home of native brush and bark and there will be nothing to do but gather the bananas that hang from the limbs, roast a pig now and then and drink the dream-some kava.

If Sir Joshua Reynolds, noted portrait painter, should return to earth and visit St. Louis and the World's Fair it is more than probable that he would seek out and pay his compliments to the three pretty St. Louis girls who recently posed in a group and had themselves photographed to represent "The Walgrave Sisters," one of Sir Joshua's famous paintings. The costumes, the expressions, the attitudes and all are true to the painting. On the front page of the color page of the Post-Dispatch Magazine this photograph is reproduced, and the names of the girls who conceived this original idea are given.

The Home Circle Section and the Comic Supplement of the Post-Dispatch both are replete with good things, fresh ideas originally treated, and the Sunday Magazine has many interesting stories and pictures other than the few mentioned above.

WENT TO SLEEP ON CAR TRACK.

James Bolter, who lives at Taylor station, was taken to the City Hospital early Saturday morning, cut and bruised from being struck by a Suburban car near Suburban Park. Bolter had been at the garden with a party of friends and started home alone. He became tired and lay down on the car track to sleep. He was awakened by the car. His legs and arms were cut and he has a number of bruises about the body. His injuries are no considered serious by the hospital physicians.

HARRIET LANE JOHNSTON DEAD

Former Mistress of White House Succumbs to Infirmities Attending Old Age.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, July 4.—Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston, niece of President James Buchanan and mistress of the White House during his administration, died at her summer home here yesterday afternoon of the infirmities attending old age.

Her remains will be buried at Baltimore, besides those of her husband and children.

Mrs. Johnston was one of the most distinguished American women of the last century. In fact, it is doubtful if any American woman was more honored at home and abroad than she. She was born in Mercersburg, Pa., just 80 years ago. Left motherless when she was seven, she went to live with her uncle, who took the place of her father for most mother, superintending her education.

As a child she was known for her loveliness, and she grew into one of the most beautiful women of her time, tall and stately, with classical features, blue eyes and golden hair.

WILL TRY TO RENEW LEASE ON "COTTAGE"

Schweickardt Says He Will Pay More Than $1000 a Year If Necessary.

Charles Schweickardt, who at present enjoys the exclusive refreshment privilege for Forest Park, says he will be an applicant for a renewal of the lease after April 1, 1904.

The present lease, which has been enjoyed by Schweickardt for 13 years, expires one month before the World's Fair opens.

"The Cottage," Mr. Schweickardt's establishment, is situated just outside the eastern fence of the Fair grounds. The operation of "The Cottage" during the fair will be a concession worth having.

A new ordinance must be passed to grant the privileges after April 1 next. Some members of the assembly already declare that the privilege should be sold to the highest bidder. At present Schweickardt pays $1000 a year.

Schweickardt says he is willing to pay more and will make a higher bid if the city decides to sell the privilege.

Schweickardt is a Republican politician. He served a term in the state senate and recently made a statement to Circuit Attorney Folk concerning bootlegging while he was a member.
